

Have you heard...

the RAW Mission podcast?

★★★★★ Authentically Inspiring

I've heard many stories of overseas mission, but what I hear when I listen to these stories is a testament to the harsh realities and sacrifices that God's calling can have on a person and on a family, but also how the truth of God's blessings far outweigh that, when you hear God speak and you say, "Yeah, I'm all in for this."

It's real, it's authentic, and it's narrated by someone with a clear passion for a people group that need to know Jesus. If you want a flavour of the mountaintop and valley experiences of mission, dive into this, you won't be disappointed!

★★★★★ Not gonna lie...

When I first saw this, I was like "yeah yeah; another Christian and his podcast" ...but I was really moved by the stories. Deeply challenging and faith-building, hearing about what God is doing in the mission field. Christians actually walking the walk vs talking the talk.

★★★★★ Super Helpful

If you're new to the RAW Mission podcast then you are in for a treat. I particularly love the breadth of guests on the show, with such a wide range of backgrounds and a variety of perspectives on what it means for us to be on Christian mission - at home and abroad. Enjoy.

In the RAW Mission podcast you will hear real-life stories from those taking the Good News across the world to the 1.9 billion Muslims who have little or no access to the gospel.

The interviews present authentic stories of joy and frustration from ordinary followers of Jesus, with a radical calling to abandon the security and comforts of home.

Catch hold of God's worldwide heart as you hear how they obeyed Jesus's command to go to all nations — beyond Jerusalem, Judea and Samaria — to the ends of the earth.
